DESIGN & DELIVER PRESENTATIONS

SELF-ASSESSMENT

CONTENT Please respond to the following with: 5 = Almost always true 4 = Usually true 3 = Sometimes true 2 = Usually not true 1 = Almost never true I bring insightful analysis and relevant detail to my presentations. I support my ideas with evidence and examples to illustrate my points. I speak to the emotional as well as the intellectual needs of my listener. I use stories and vivid imagery to help people feel and see what I'm describing. I create powerful closings that come full circle with my opening - reinforcing my key point and leaving my audience satisfied. I create a strong opening by talking about what the listener truly cares about and rarely begin by talking about myself. My talk resembles an engaging narrative more than a series of slides, bullet points and lists of data. I typically open a presentation with a central theme or sentence, which I reinforce throughout. I organize my ideas in an integrated and sequential flow with ideas building upon each other making it easier for the listener to understand. I use brevity and never go too long. People leave my presentation knowing clearly what I'm saying. I know why I'm speaking and what I outcome I want for my audience. My language is easy to understand. I rarely use vague or confusing jargon, acronyms or clichés. CONTENT TOTAL SCORE

| I am fully aware of what is happening in the room when I am speaking to people. I can see and read their responses and I adjust as needed. |
| I am comfortable using gestures in front of a group and never feel awkward about using my hands. |
| I always listen to people and demonstrate that I care about their point of view. |
| I take time to prepare myself mentally and physically so that when I speak to one person or a hundred, I am in my optimum performance state. |
| I begin by gaining rapport with others and start by building common ground before jumping into my agenda. |
| I maintain eye contact while speaking to groups. |
| My language and tone are generally warm, personable and conversational. |
| I use slides, handouts or media only to support my presentation; I don't let my slides become more important than my presence. |
| When I speak, I know that I vary my tempo, pitch and volume to liven up my content with nuance and variety. |

PLOTTING YOUR SCORES

This is an example of how to plot your scores. (Content is the vertical line and Delivery is the horizontal line.)

- 1. Add up your content and delivery scores.
- 2. Place a solid dot that represents the two scores on the Performance Grid.

INTERPRETING YOUR SCORE

Interpreting Your Score

If you're in the lower left box, you've scored yourself low in Content and Delivery. Chances are the listener is having difficulty connecting to your ideas. The danger is they are bored, apathetic and even angry. You need to work on Content and Delivery.

If you're in the lower right box, you've scored yourself high on Delivery. Your style – posture, expression and voice – are engaging the listener but the substance is lacking. They are pleasantly engaged but dismiss you as superficial. You need to work on developing more clarity, relevance and brevity.

If you're in the upper left, you scored high on content but low on delivery. Most likely you're thinking is strong, but your voice and body are not supporting your message. The danger is that the listener wants to hear your good ideas yet they're working so hard that they're frustrated. At its worst, there's a level of monotony that can produce a negative impact.

If you're in the upper right, your ideas a clear, relevant and organized and your delivery is dynamic and compelling. You're bringing an appropriate level of energy and organized thought that brings value to your listener. After listening to you, people are ready to act – to do something.

What's Next?

- If you want to grow as a communicator, you need a clear and compelling goal. In order to achieve that, mark on the performance grid where you want your communication to be and put an "X" on that spot.
- Draw a line between the solid dot that marks where you are now and the X that marks where you need to be.
- Note the angle of the line. If the line is vertical, you need to work on content. If the line is horizontal, you need to work on delivery. If the line is at an angle, you need to work on both.
- 4. Review your responses to each question to provide direction on where to improve.

PLOTTING YOUR GROWTH

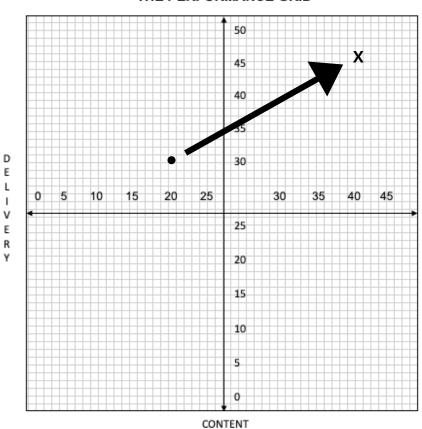

Example of your scores and your "X" that marks where you want to be.

Example: 30 Content - 20 Delivery

Example:

Line at an angle.
Work on both content and delivery.
